Introduction

The Department of Archaeology and Anthropology, School of Social Sciences hosts an annual Summer Field School in Archaeology and Anthropology to provide international students the opportunity to work together with their Mongolian colleagues in fieldwork for new experience, knowledge, and insights. It aims to:

- broaden your understanding of traditional culture of Mongolian nomads through the study of history, ancient and contemporary culture of Mongols, and archaeological monuments from different historical periods of Mongolia.
- provide an excellent experience in archaeological excavation of pre-historical and historical monuments in Eastern Mongolia.

Objectives

The objectives of the field school are as follows:

- To promote in-depth awareness of cultural traditions of Mongolians
- To introduce participants to basic archaeological field methods and techniques such as survey, excavation, and data recording.

At the end of the program, students should be able to demonstrate:

- General knowledge of Mongolian culture and history
- Basic understanding of burial ritual and settlement patterns of ancient nomads

Structure

Orientation (9-11 July)

- Ulaanbaatar city tour: Visit museums and the National festival “Naadam”
- Basic lectures on Mongolian history, ethnography, archaeology and anthropology (During the UB city tour and fieldwork).

Fieldwork (12 July - 3 August)

Field-based learning is the epitome of summer fieldwork. Professors and lecturers with fieldwork experience and extensive knowledge in related areas of study supervise fieldwork students.

Route of fieldwork:

- Ulaanbaatar-Kherlen river valley archaeological sites to see archaeological monuments from the Bronze age: different grave monuments, deer stone and grave monuments from the Xiongnu and Turkic periods – Khentii aimag center (visit local museums) – Munkhkhaan soum center – Delgerkhaan mountain excavation site.

Students will camp, cook and work as a team and may be divided into three field groups: survey, site evaluation, and oral history teams. Team members will rotate every 2 to 3 days, giving each student the opportunity to participate in different activities.

Research report (4-7 August)

Students prepare a research paper and present it at the closing workshop.
SUMMER SCHOOL IN MONGOLIA’S MINING ECONOMY
19 July – 5 August, 2012

Credits: 5
(Mongolian Studies-2 credits, Field research-2 credits, Research paper-1 credit)

Introduction:
Participants will increase their practical knowledge about mining industries in Mongolia. It contains training tours to two destinations. Over the course of 18 days, you will visit 9 mining industries of Mongolia and get practical knowledge from these activities. This training tour will cover approximately 5,000 kilometers.

Purpose
To introduce the present situation and future prospects of the mining economy in Mongolia.

Accommodation and Work Environment
Students must be prepared to live and work in a field camp, sleep in tents, share camp chores and maintenance, and engage in strenuous outdoor activities. The chores will include cooking, clean-up, and general maintenance of the field facilities. Outdoor activities will include hiking to survey quads and archaeological site locations. Students will be responsible for excavating, carrying heavy loads, and processing field collections.

Personal Supplies
Students in the course should arrive prepared for fieldwork and camping. Critical items include a tent, good sleeping bag, rain gear, hiking boots, grubby clothes, toiletries, hat, and a camera. Your field equipment kit should contain a watch, compass, protractor, pencils and pens, and you should have your personal backpack, a portable water container, toilet paper, and insect repellent. The program will provide food, equipment, and transportation during the field experience. A complete list of personal supplies will be furnished upon registration for the course.

Tuition and Fees: $2000
Summer Field School fees include all program related expenses: tuition fee, in-country transportation, accommodation and home stay. It does not include:
- costs associated with passports and other travel documents
- international airfare to and from Ulaanbaatar
- a visa fee and visa extension fee
- costs associated with travel after the end of the season
- personal expenses such as purchases, entertainment and sightseeing, insurance premiums etc.

Application deadline: 1 June, 2012
