I really enjoyed learning federalism and decentralisation; it will help me finish my paper of doctoral degree – Student from China

The course was really relevant and useful not only for academics but also for professionals, like me. It will be useful for my entire career.– Young professional in public administration from India

The course gave me new insights on the subject and helped me see things from a different point of view. It will be valuable for my teachings back home – Teaching assistant from Romania

The Summer University enables students to enhance their knowledge about Power Sharing (e.g. Federalism and Decentralisation), especially its chances and limits in relation to conflict resolution. The programme is aimed at advanced students of law, political science, economics or journalism (completed BA) and young professionals keen to improve their knowledge of federalism, decentralisation and conflict resolution.

Applications are open from:
01 February until 31 March 2012
